300 High School Students Attend Senior Day

Culbertson on Next Lyceum; Thompson, Chase Like Plan

Calls for World Police System In Proposal.

As the closing number of this year's Wartburg College Artists Series, Ely Culbertson, world famous contract bridge expert, author, and earnest student of economics, mass psychology, and mathematics will lecture on his famous "PLAN FOR WORLD SETTLEMENT" here on Thursday evening, May 11, 1944, at 8 o'clock.

Mr. Culbertson is the son of an American mining engineer who devoted many years to developing the rich Grozny oil-fields of the Caucasus. His mother was the daughter of a Russian Cossack the early years of his life in Russia and other parts of Europe. While he has many formidable achievements in the field of bridge playing to his credit, including the invention of a bridge system played the world over and his world-famous international bridge competitions, he considers his life work to be concerned primarily with the establishment of a world-wide system of justice and peace. Since 1942, Ely Culbertson has become known to an increasing number of persons as a host at one-man peace conference—an expert sitting at a future peace table, as a bridge expert sits at a card table, dealing out problems to be solved.

His plan as proposed, provides for an international police force, an idea common to many people plans, but with a difference—in this plan a "quota force principle" operates by which military forces are so distributed as to make it impossible for a combination of forces to overthrow any one state. Professor Quincy Wright of New York City declares, "The plan makes future aggression relatively impossible." Yet despite the mathematical exactness of this plan it is, says a prominent Philadelphia editor, "amazingly conceived to appeal equally to idealists and materialists, isolationists and interventionists, scoffers and believers, etc."

Articles on both sides of the Atlantic are taking notice. As a member of the English Parliament puts it, the Culbertson plan is not only "the most original, realistic, and brilliant approach to the problem of world order I have ever come across. It provides for a positive set of war and peace aims in line with and implementing the rough outline contained in the Atlantic Charter. If adopted, it will not only help insure the total defeat of Nazi Germany, but will shorten the war."

Mr. Culbertson's plan has also received kind words from two acid-tongued critics, Dorothy Thompson and Stuart Chase.

Of the plan, formulated by Culbertson, Miss Thompson says it is the strongest and most realistic yet offered "for creating a world police system that will protect all its collective security."

Chase says, "I've only scheme I have ever seen specifically designed for getting around the rock of nationalism."

Even the New York Times, which doesn't notice the unimportant, went all out for Ely Culbertson's peace plan.

"The dynamic, flamboyant tycoon of contract bridge is the author of the most elaborate, complicated, ingenious and controversial world peace constitution that has yet been conjured up by the inventive imagination of man," Mr. Culbertson says he has spent much of the last twenty years studying mass psychology and most of the last four years in concentrated labor on his plan. Its private circulation in a prospectus last summer and a recent article about it in the Reader's Digest have given ample advance warning of the new Culbertson system.

"It may be that the World Federation Plan is better suited to the twenty-first century than the Twentieth. Nevertheless it is bursting with concrete suggestions and provocative ideas that deserve respectful attention. They are blazes marking the general direction of the trail the world must take some time."

Andre Maurois, originally scheduled to appear on the last Artists Series number of the season, was compelled to cancel his lecture tour, because of military orders from Washington requiring him to return to active duty immediately. This was the second person who could not come because of a military emergency. Professor Swensen remarked, "We're glad to give Mr. Maurois up, for he can help us more over there than he can here."

CHOIR PRESENTS HOME CONCERT

The Wartburg College Choir presented its annual home concert of sacred songs on Sunday evening, April 23, at St. Paul's Parish House. In spite of the unpleasant weather the crowd was of a considerable size and many drove over fifty miles to attend the concert. The choir formation and robed in the impressive black and white gowns, the choir of forty-seven voices presented an hour and a half performance of sacred music. The entire program of eleven numbers was sung a capello. Professor E. Liemohn, director of the choir, was the composer of two of the songs, "Kyrie" and "Every Heart Can be a Temple" which were sung by the choir.

The Sunday previous to the home concert the choir toured to Tripoli and Sumner and presented the same program. The hosts of each congregation served a lunch to the choir and the members of the choir wish to thank them for their kindness.

On May 10 the Wartburg Choir will present the broadcast and the numbers sung will be recorded. This broadcast will be the last in the season and everyone is invited to listen in at 4:15 over station WOI.

St. Olaf Choir Here

On Friday, April 21, the famous St. Olaf Choir of Northfield, Minnesota presented a Sunday evening concert in the senior high school auditorium in Dubuque. The Wartburg Seminary male chorus sponsored the concert and was responsible for general arrangements and ticket sales. A large crowd turned out to attend this concert given by the foremost college choir in the United States. Although the great Dr. F. Melius Christiansen was unable to be with the group, his son Olaf C. handled the fifty odd voices with great precision and interpreted the beautiful hymns and chorals to perfection. It was the hope of practically the Seminary's but also the city of Dubuque's musical season.

Luther League Meeting

On April 18, 19 and 20 the thirteen district Luther League presidents and youth chairmen from the thirteen districts of the ALC met on the Seminary campus. Evangelism and community service were the themes for the three day meeting and youth leadership training schools were discussed and plans made for such schools to be held in each of the thirteen districts during the coming summer. Rev. Marcus Rieke, president of the ALC was in charge of arrangements for the meeting, and Oscar Ice, Capitol University student, and president of the International Luther League presided over all the sessions. Every district was represented in this annual meeting.

From Woodcutter to Doctor "In Spite of Himself"

"The Doctor in Spite of Himself" was a smash hit (the "Doc" getting the hits—any ill effects, Jack?).

The first act started out with a "bang" as Jack stumbled out of his humble abode with his wife, Dot Becker, singing her pots and pans after him. A kindly neighbor seeking to quell the storm between the woodcutter and his wife learned a lesson in her fury turned on him. You never can tell about hackwoodsmen, can you, Elroy?

The woodcutter, after "ousting" the neighbor, tried to pacify his wife and soon departed for the woods certain that he left her in a peaceful frame of mind, but she swore to get even. She seized her chance when two servants, Herb Keller and Harold Bachman, came through the woods for a doctor as their master, Herb Boehring, had fallen ill and could do. Herb's daughter, Dorothy Diers, had lost her power of speech and no physician was able to find the cause. Finally told them of a woodcutter who had a strange power for curing diseases but he was too selfish to use his knowledge to the world, so he refused to admit he was a doctor. Dot, with a promise of gold, made it very clear that he would have to be beaten before he would admit he was a genius. Mary and John armed themselves with sticks and set off to find the mysterious woodcutter.

When Jack was confronted with accusations of being a doctor, he denied it, but in vain, John and Mary had their sticks ready and used them to the best advantage. Jack was set against being anybody's doctor, but when John cryptically mentioned that he could set his own price for his services, he wasted no time in assuming his role of a great doctor. The old trio arrived at the home of the wealthy man and Jack was duly introduced as a great doctor sent for his stricken daughter who appeared accompanied by her two capable maids, Rosalie Stolz and Margaret Hahn. In less time than it takes to tell it, Jack diagnosed the case very fluently (and also after discovering that Herb knew nothing of the language).

Verda Hamann, who portrayed the flirtatious wife of Lucas (Mary Ackerman), immediately caught Jack's eye. The "Doc" tried at once various means to catch her attention. Mary was soon jumping up and down in fits of jealousy at Jack's persistence.

THE DOCTOR

One day as Doctor Meyer was strolling in the garden, a young man, La Verne Streich, rushes in, begging him to help him win the respect of the rich master so that he might marry his dumb-stricken daughter. He reveals that Lucas (Ackerman) is only feigning his predicament because her father insists she marry another man. Jack then arranged a meeting between La Verne and Dorothy by putting La Verne in the disguise as an apothecary. Herb gives his permission to Dorothy to go walking with the young man and thus they plan to elope. Immediately after the departure Mary rushes in and tells Herb of the plan of elopement and points an accusing finger at Jack and explains how the doctor has disguised La Verne. Herb immediately calls the police and declares Jack must be hanged. Suddenly La Verne and Dorothy rush in with good news. La Verne has just inherited a fortune from an uncle. Herb is then delighted with the match. At this moment Jack's wife returns home and claims some honors for her husband. This makes Jack angry and they again began to argue but are interrupted by the happiness of the others in the garden. The doctor smiles "in spite of himself."

Piano Recital

Sharon Carrott, brilliant 15-year-old pianist from Rockford, Iowa, will play her third solo recital on May 19th at the Waverly high school.

The following numbers will be included in the program:

WARTBURGERS AID RED CROSS

A report released Thursday by William Tofte on work of the Wartburg College unit of the Waverly Red Cross chapter shows contributions in these four phases of Red Cross work: Home nursing, production of garments, surgical dressings and fund raising.

The report covered work of the unit, headed by student Darlene Strand and supervised by Dr. M. Wiederaenders, for the past four months.

In March, nine Wartburg students of the original sixteen who enrolled in the home nursing course in December were graduated from the course. Production work was done during the months of December and January with a total of seventeen workers and fifty-one working hours for the first month and ten workers and twenty-nine hours for the second.

Figures for the four months' work on surgical dressings showed a monthly increase of work hours in spite of a gradual monthly decrease in number of workers reporting. The December total of workers was sixty-five, dropping gradually to fifty-three in March. Hours of work applied began at 146 in December and increased steadily to the March high of 186.

Fifty students contributed to the war fund during the period covered by the report with a total contribution of $27.50.

25 IOWA SCHOOLS REPRESENTED IN COLLEGE VISIT

College in Action Demonstrated By Collegiates.

This day will be remembered by every campus student and all visitors. It was a chance for the high school seniors to see "a college in action" and so become acquainted with college life in advance of their enrollment. There were around 300 high school students represented from twenty-five schools.

Registration took place at the library from 8 to 11 a. m.

After entering the administration building the visitors were shown where to register. Guides assisted those who wanted to register and also give aid to those who wished to visit certain classes.

Classes were very well attended and great interest was shown.

The teachers displayed and demonstrated the methods used in conducting classes.

A large group was present in the gymnasium to hear the Wartburg choir under the direction of Professor Liemohn. The choir sang four numbers, "Built on the Rock" by F. M. Christiansen, "Every Heart Can Be a Temple," E. Liemohn, "Lost in the Night," F. Melius Christiansen, and "Praise to the Lord," F. Milius Christianson. This concluded the morning's convocation.

There was open house in all buildings from 12:30 to 3.

The visitors were impressed by the rooms.

The band concert, under the direction of Professor Heist, was held in the gymnasium at 1:30. The band played the following numbers: "America Exultant," "Olympic Overture," "Washington Post March," "Old Vienna Overture," "Them Basses," "Anchors Aweigh" and for an encore, "Marine's Hymn." Leland Bunge favored us with a flute solo, "Senta," accompanied by Elroy Buhr. A cornet duet was played by Victor Gold and Florence Diemer, "Two Friends," a piano was accompanied by Jean Drewelow.

Immediately after the concert, the visitors were chapter shown in the Home Economics department.

The baseball game was held on North Field at 2:30—Wartburg vs. Luther. The score was 2-2 from the third inning but then in the ninth inning the tide turned when Luther gained three scores leaving the game 5-2 in Luther's favor.

The convocation in the evening was conducted by Burton Schwerdtfeger. His subject was on II Cor. 4:18, "While we look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen; for the things which are seen are temporal; but the things which are not seen are eternal." The play, "The Doctor in Spite of Himself," was presented in the Parish House at 8 p.m. The cast, and the audience, enjoyed this unusual farce.

The opinions expressed in this publication are not necessarily those of the faculty or administration.

To the average foreigner, America means little more than a list of facts. The largest city, the population, the principal exports and imports, the crops, etc.

Of course, America means more to us—it means the big things, democracy, everybody, even the kid from the slums, getting an even break. Freedom of speech—what would a city park be without its soap box orator, or what could the people talk about on the street corner if politics were a forbidden topic? There is freedom of a religion, too—attending the church of your choice every Sunday. America is justice and generosity. These are the big things; the things you'd write about if you were writing an essay or a theme.

But don't the common things represent America too? Hot dogs and baseball games and picnics, cowboy movies on Saturday night and pop corn, music—classical or jive to suit your mood, circuses and carnivals, cotton candy, bike riding, and your family and the kid next door that you went to kindergarten with.

How about it? Isn't that America too?

—T—

It was a cloudy morning—you missed breakfast and were late to your eight o'clock class just because you didn't hear the bells—you weren't sure what the professor was talking about when he asked you that question—you didn't get any mail—and you didn't like the scalloped potatoes for dinner! So what? So you "gripe"—long and loudly about everything in general and a few things in particular! You get it all out of your system and where are you? Not any farther along than before.

Let's analyze this "griping" business. The college isn't just the buildings, or the faculty or the food. College is the kids—your roommate, your friends—it's working toward the profession you've chosen. It's the spreads, it's the fun—and it's cramming for tests too! College is what we make it! When you complained, you didn't think you were exposing your own inefficiency—or that you were telling your friends you didn't like the way they were handling things—did you?

Wednesday was Senior Day—there were about three hundred high school seniors here to look over the college and campus. Admit it—weren't you a little proud that you "belonged" here? Weren't you proud of the choir, the band, the baseball players and the play cast?

There are only a few weeks left in the present semester—let's promote an "anti-gripe" campaign and make them the best ever.

Religious News and Views

By RUDOLF MARTENS

Earthquake ripe Peru; volcano appears in Mexico; tidal wave hatters Pacific islands; tornado tears way through Georgia; hurricane hurls ship aground; heavy seas crush warship: these tragic news events are not as ominous as they sound, at least to Christians.

Today is an age when man prides himself upon his great achievements and gloats over his conquering some of the forces of nature which previous to this time were dreaded by all, but he still trembles in fear before the unmastered powers of the universe. Great armies equipped with the most offensive and defensive weapons known to man stand abashed before the unlimited powers of the Creator, for only He who made all knows how to end all things.

Christ calmly asserted His power when He arose in the storm-tossed sea and commanded the elements into silence. Here the Almighty hand of God showed once and for all the true extent that only He can control the whole of nature. Well, if it is true that God alone is in charge of all these indestructible forces, then why is the world troubled by them? Time after time, God is forced to solemnly remind adherents that He will not be mocked, for if we should attempt to do so, thereby we will be visited by His almighty wrath.

God's warning to the world is voiced by the prophet Isaiah, "the seeing nations shall feel the rod of the Lord of Hosts with thunder, and with earthquake, and great noise, with storm and tempest." The Holy Writer continues, "The wind shall carry them away and the whirlwind shall scatter them." Nothing is still to be done that 'they may see and know and consider and understand together that the hand of the Lord hath done this and . . . created it."

As Isaiah warns the evildoers so also does the Psalmist when he says, "The Lord on high is mightier than the mighty waves of the sea." Let us therefore remember that the Lord uses the powers of nature to warn the world.

The Lord Jesus in His Olivet Discourse speaking of the last days declares, "These things must needs be; but the end shall not be yet. Upon the earth, distress of nations with perplexity; the sea and the waves roaring." Thus we are prepared for the occurrences of all these things. We must learn to expect ominous tidings from all quarters whenever they occur, but when they do then we may say with the Psalmist of old, "Let us not fear though the earth be removed and the mountains be cast into the midst of the sea." God still rules His glorious creation and when the appointed time comes, all will be ended by Him who does all things well.

The Bible Speaks

Recently the American Foundation for the Blind announced the completion of a set of records which cover the entire Bible, from Genesis to Revelation, as a "talking Book" for the nearly 200,000 blind people of the United States. When it was realized that less than ten-per-cent of the total number can read Braille or some other system, it was decided to record long-playing phonograph disks upon which trained speakers recorded the Word of God.

The talking book of all books is recorded on 169 double-sided records, which have a reading time of 84½ hours. The Library of Congress has made this set available by mail, free of charge, to the blind of the nation. A recent editorial in the New York Times stated:

"Of all books, the Bible lends itself pre-eminently to being read aloud. Translated at a time when English prose had reached a peak never since surpassed, the King James' Version, which is the one recorded, abounds in the final virtues of sonorousness and simplicity. We can well imagine that Milking Shed Weneta in the Bible written in sound will feel Isaiah had them in mind when he wrote that some sinks to them through the mail roll out the ancient prophecy, "I will bring the blind by a way they knew not; I will lead them in paths that they have not known: I will make darkness light before them."—(Isaiah 42:16.)

Seminary Annual "The Tower"

Last week the Wartburg Seminary "Tower," the yearbook of the student body, came off the press. This is the second such book to be published by the student body. This year's theme for the annual was "Wartburg After Ninety Years," commemorating the ninetieth anniversary of the Seminary. Besides depicting the life of Seminary students, the book contains a complete history of the Seminary and traces its development up to the present time. A complete list of pastors who have graduated from Wartburg is also printed along with the graduates of St. Paul-Luther Seminary in St. Paul, Minn., which was merged with Wartburg in 1932.

Liemohn Reveals Hidden Talents

Noted author of compositions for choir, student of languages, woodworking hobbyist, and now "Keeper of the Bees"! Who, but that man of various and unrelated interests, Professor Liemohn.

It was quite by accident that the professor revealed himself to be a linguist of some note. Prof. Liemohn studies 100 German words a day so he will be able to master the German language sufficiently to enable him to master the French language sufficiently so he can read a French story that he knows nothing about but intrigues him! Now that is logic!

When the interview was practically over, Mr. Liemohn explained that he would have to go home now and see that his wife didn't burn the syrup! The syrup, carefully explained Prof. Liemohn, is for his bees—another hobby of this versatile choir director.

He has two swarms of bees—the Caucasians and the Italians. The Caucasians arrived at the Liemohns' on May 20, 1943, and are "gentle and kind." The Italians, however, are a different story. Prof. Liemohn climbed twenty feet into a tree to secure this stray swarm, cut the limb and descended with his prize. "I was scared," he said, "but they respected me!" The Italians, Prof. Liemohn was pleased to report, have developed all the stinging for both swarms!

The "bee man" then waxed professional and gave out with a few samples of "bee" language and patiently explained about the queen and the drones and the workers.

Not that we were afraid of the bees, but we seconded the motion unanimously when Prof. Liemohn suggested he dash home to help Mrs. Liemohn with the syrup.

Band, Choir, Outside Speakers Features In Convocations

Duties of an army nurse were discussed in convocation on Tuesday, April 11, by Lieutenant Irene Ottersberg. Lieut. Ottersberg, a Wartburg alumna and a sister of Prof. G. Ottersberg, pleaded for a greater respect for the noble group of nurses who are often unappreciated. She pointed out that the WAVES and the WACS are not the only feminine branches of the United States service.

A film on jungle fighting, "U. S. Review Number 11," featured the April 12 convocation. New Guinea was the principal war theater covered by this picture.

Jack Meyer was in charge of the student convocation on April 14, speaking on "Faith." He drew his text from Matthew 16:20, and brought out that some tenets of our belief are difficult to understand; when we believe that which we cannot see, we have real faith. He compared the sorrow of Good Friday with the joy of Easter, and the sorrow of war with the joy of peace to come and that, since Christ died and arose, we too have hope.

Dr. John Hiltner described the work of the recent Danish martyr, Kaj Munk, on April 17. The sermon of Kaj Munk, who was "eliminated" by the Nazis because of his fearless sermons, which were considered unfavorable to the Nazi party, have been published in a book, from which Dr. Hiltner read one as a sample.

On April 18, the American Bible Society presented "The Bible in a Warring World," a film which stressed the need of the Bible in this troubled world. The society has been very instrumental in the past in publishing the Word in almost every language, and now the destruction of sister Bible societies in other lands, our American Bible Society has more work than ever and needs our support, it was pointed out.

Rev. Wert Siefkes spoke on April 19. Rev. Siefkes, pastor of our Lutheran Service Center in San Antonio, Texas, described the duties which his position demands.

Under the able leadership of Professor Ernest G. Heist the Wartburg band presented a concert in the gymnasium on April 20. The popularity of the program was proved by the audience demanding two encores.

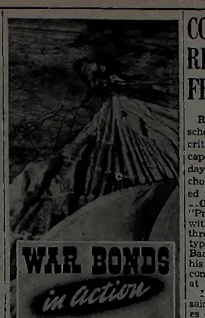
Don Voigts spoke in convocation on April 21. He based his remarks on Matthew 5:43-48, and spoke on love of one's fellowmen, stressing the need of applying it here on our campus.

On April 24, Professor Alvin E. Fritz urged the youth of Wartburg, particularly the women, to consider social work. He said that a great future is ahead in this service with positions almost guaranteed for the next ten years at least. Need for workers is brought on by war-time conditions, particularly in congested defense areas.

Also at this program, Dr. M. Wiederaenders spoke on the need for parish workers in the individual congregations of the American Lutheran church. He outlined Wartburg's new parish-workers program, where emphasis is placed on education, secretariat, or music, permitting the student to make his own selection of subjects.

Wartburg players previewed the play, "The Doctor in Spite of Himself," by Moliere, on April 25.

Senior Day took the place of regular convocation exercises on April 26, with the Wartburg college Choir as the main feature. Instrumental numbers were also on the program. Dr. Hiltner led the service and President Braulick extended a welcome to the guests.



More and more our armies are landing our fighting troops by parachute, disrupting enemy lines, enemy communications, but paying a heavy price in casualties.

Silken fineries and their substitutes are fast passing from the market to provide safe landings for our distant fighting men. We are still buy silk and nylon for them with War Bonds and Stamps.

COLLEGE CHOIR RECEIVES PRAISE FROM CRITIC

Richard Baker, Waverly high school intrumental instructor, in a critical review of the Wartburg a capella choir's concert last Sunday, commended both director and choir highly. The review appeared in the Waverly Independent.

..Of the director Mr. Baker said, "Prof. E. Liemohn led his choir with dignity and reverence through a program of varied types of church music from the Bach 'Jesu, Priceless Treasure,' to his own 'Kyrie,' a section of a concert mass on which he is now at work."

In reference to the choir he said, "The beautiful blended voices of the choir as well as the fine workmanship and musicianship exhibited in all their performances place the organization of young men and women on a par with the best that this nation has to offer."

Throughout the article Mr. Baker specifically pointed out various numbers of the concert with special mention of "Lost in the Night", "My God, How Wonderful Thou Art", "Kyrie", "Beautiful Savior", and "Praise the Lord."

In conclusion he stated, "The city of Waverly should be equally proud of this continually superb choir of Wartburg college as it is of its other fine student organization."

State College, Pa.—(ACP)—Good teachers should not be drafted regardless of age, marital status, or other qualifications, according to Dr. M. R. Trabue, dean of the school of education at Pennsylvania State college. On the other hand, he said, the man who merely "hears pupils recite lessons" might be more useful in a naval, military, or industrial job.

SIX TRACKSTERS ENTER RELAYS

Yesterday six light clads traveled to Simpson to compete in the quadrangular track meet against Simpson, Penn and Parsons colleges.

Max Diemer, the speed demon of the cinders, was scheduled to run the 100 yard dash and the broad jump. Vic Gold was matched to run the 220 and 440 yard dashes. Lowell Koch ran the 220 and half mile in separate events. Bill Fink ran the mile and Will Mueller ran the 220 yard high and low hurdles. Four fellows, Gold, Koch, Hoepel and Diemer combined as a team to run the 880 yard relay.

Today, Saturday, the 880 yard relay quads entered the Drake relays at Des Moines, Iowa. Little is known just what kind of competition will be set before them. If the event is broken into conference relays then Wartburg may have a chance competing against some colleges like Central or Simpson or St. Ambrose. But if this event is run in such a manner so that all the Iowa colleges entered compete against each other, then the story may be a little different.

Ten men were scheduled to go on these trips, but because of poor weather and a number of other reasons four of them were unable to compete.

Tegtmeier Memorial

A memorial service for Jack Tegtmeier, who attended Wartburg in 1943, was held in St. Paul's Lutheran church Sunday afternoon. Jack gave his life in the service of his country in Italy. The sermon, given by Rev. Otto Fangmeyer, was based on Romans 8:28 "And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are called according to his purpose." Lucia Teske sang "One Sweetly Solemn Thought" before the ristastic service was read by Wes Broadie. The impressive service was given before a large congregation. Legion members and a number of World War II soldiers attended the service in a body.

Prof. August C. Kery has been made chairman of the University of Minnesota department of history, succeeding the late Dr. Lester D. Shipper. (ACP).

LUTHER CLIPS WARTBURG 5-2 IN SEASON OPENER

Before a large group of high school seniors and Wartburg students the Knights lost a thrilling season opener to Luther on April 26. The game was played on the North Field campus. Batteries were "Shorty" Sailer on the mound and Eldon Ihnen taking care of the backstop activities for Wartburg. For Luther, Williams pitching and Knase catching.

The Norsemen started the first inning off with one run with the help of a few Wartburg errors. The last of the second inning saw Ray Ihnen rap out the first hit. Ihnen later scored for the Knights' first run. Ed Gabel, Knight third sacker, came across for Wartburg's second run in the third inning.

In the first of the sixth Nelson of Luther tied the score at 2-2 with a run. In the eighth the Knights really pulled a fast one—the infield executed a triple play. Loots caught an infield fly, threw it to second, catching the man off base. Ihnen threw to Koch at first, catching the man off first.

The umpire remarked that it was the first triple play he has seen in college baseball for a long time.

In the ninth Koch relieved Sailer on the mound. In the first part of that inning the Norsemen staged a final rally which brought three runs across the plate. The Knights failed to score in the ninth, leaving the score 5-2 in favor of Luther.

Williams of Luther struck out 11 of the Wartburg 9 whereas Sailer fanned 6 and Koch 1. The hits were evenly distributed, each team taking 6.

Although the Knights were defeated in this initial contest, we believe they can improve and go to Decorah May 4 and come back with a victory.

SCHNEEWITTCHEN UND-DIE SEVEN DWARFEN

Es war once upon a time ein schon Princess die Schneewitchen ge-called wir. Sie hat eine terrible Stepmutter, who konnte es nicht permitten dass someone else more prettier and schoner than sie habie liven should. Every tag she asked her Magic looking-Spiegel die question, "Mirror, Mirror auf red Wall, Am I die schonste Babe of all?"

Und die magic looking-spiegel would sagen: "Queenie, du bist really tops."

Uber after a while little Schneewitchen hat prettier and schoner, and when die Stepmutter widerum her looking-spiegel die question asked, it sagte: "Ach, du bist, aber Schneewittchen really takes die Kuchen."

Dies made die Queen sehr hot unter dem Kollar, und sie wanted to put Schneewittchen out of der Weg. So she called her bester Hunter beside. Zu him she sagte, "Take das Brat out in dem Woods. Bash ihr die brains aus."

Dann Hunter take Kid unter her Hand and led her away, aus in dem Woods, aber wenn he wanted her to kilen, he konnte nicht because er war Chickenherzlich.

Der Hunter sagt, "Na, dann Brat, schrammen Sie." Und Schneewittchen schrammte.

Da war die arme little kid all alone in der great big woods. Sie hat schured. Sogleich sie saw ein little Hauslein and went hinein. Es war die Home der seven Dwarfen. Schneewittchen war ganz tuckered out, so sie ist zu Schlep auf die whole row of Beds.

Dann came die Dwarfen home again. Diese waren Herr Grumpy, Herr Sneezy, Herr Bashful, Herr Shorty, Herr Dizzy, Herr Happy, and Herr Dopey. Da sie saw Schneewittchen auf dem beds lying sagen sie, auf deutsch, "Ahoooooooo!" Bei dem whistle that she up-gewaked and dann hat she die Dwarfen getold who she was. Und die Dwarfen hat her getold that she mit dem liven could. Und so hat she dere gelived and Haus fur die Dwarfen ge-kept.

Meanwhiles die Stepmutter wider her magic looking-spiegel dies question ge-asked: "Mirror, Mirror, auf der Wall, Am I die schonste Babe of all?" Und der Mirror sagt, Ja, du bist die schonste here, aber Schneewittchen, who now mit den Dwarfen lives, She's got es alles uber dir."

Dann hat die Stepmutter beinah she off dem Handle geflewn. Sie put on some old clothes and ging bei dem Haus der seven Dwarfen. Schneewittchen honnt dess sie ein old Farmer's Weib war, and let her in kommen. Sie gave Schneewittchen ein schone little bodice, and hat es so tight up-getied dass Schneewittchen could nicht breathen, and so sie fell down like Tot. Aber die Dwarfen kammen back home un make her loose, und she war wider O. K.

In der meantimes, die Stepmutter asked der lookin-spiegel die selbe question again, and got der same answer, namelich, dass Schneewittchen nock prettier war. Und so made sie herself in eine Hexen-witch, and ging back to der Haus der seven Dwarfen. Da sie gave Schneewittchen ein gepoisoned Apple, and wenn der arme Kid hat es gegessen, fell sie down like Dead. Dann laughte die Stepmutter wie der Taufel himself.

Die poor Dwarfen kammen back home again and found her dead. Sie hourten sehr much fur sie, and sie maiden hat an koffen mit ein glass top and put her darin, und al die little animals kammen and cried uber sie.

Dann aber kam ein Prince durch die woods and saw her da lyin. Er sagte auf deutch, "Ahoooooooo!" Er ging zu die Dwarfen and sagte, "Sei mir das koffin. Ich will dir payen was es worth ist."

Aber die Dwarfen sagten, "Nicht fur all der Bier in Brooklyn." Und er sagte, "Denn gi mir's," because ich kann nicht mitout Schneewittchen leben. I will es watchen and garden fur always."

Dann gave die Dwarfen ihm den Koffin mit Schneewittchen in it. Er nahm die glass cover off and kisste her auf die schone lippen. Und wenn er dies ge-done hat, war der spell der poisoned Apfel ge-broken, and sie war wider alive. Der prince war uberjoyed.

Schneewittchen sagte, "Ach! Was ist ge-happened. Wer bin ich."

Der Prince sagte, "Du bist mit mir, Baby, und mit mir musst du stayen." Es war Love zu firster Zeit, and sie fellen each other in die Armen. Sie gaben zu der Haus des Prince's Vater and lived happily ever after.

Aber was ist von die terrible Stepmutter be-kommen. Sie war so anxious to make herself schon fur die wedding reception, dass sie ein Hole in der Mirror ge-looked, hat, stuck her Kopf durch, and was zu death ge-choked.

Green Relates Gruesome Happenings of Zoo Lab.

At 7:58 a. m. the sound of listless feet climbing the stone staircase inside informs Doc Hertel that it is almost time for his zoology 102 class to enter another one of THOSE lab periods. At 7:59, the door opens and a line of sleepy-eyed, bored students again stumble in to survey the wonders of a frog's inners, or to look into a human skeleton with mingled feelings of awe and horror, or to peer intently into a microscope in an all-in-vain attempt to make "Doc" think they have made a successful slide—at last! The unit of study is soon seen to be obviously—the frog.

A drugged silence overcomes the class. Whispered remarks like this explain the apparent engrossment of the class in the Rana pipiens. "Oh, I'm so sleepy; I didn't get in till 2:30 from my trip." "This formaldehyde, or whatever. Prof. says it is, is getting me down"; "Oops! Doc's coming my way! I'd better be doing something." Doc enters with a helpful look in one eye, but a stern stare in the other.

Doc has just barely made the announcement that the only thing digestive tract to reach the heart when Green triumphantly waves a severed arm in the air, unaware of the concealed emotions of the professor. But the entire class finally remove their hearts, that is the frogs', which continue to beat long after they are laid in salt water.

"Let's see," says Doc. "What class does the frog belong to?"

"I think it's Phylum Nematheliminthes," pipes up a voice from the rear, as we recognize our prize student, Art Albers.

"What's this?? Oh yes, the Gold twins are at it again, and are they ever pulling each other's hair! I suppose Doc is ducking into the storeroom—do you?

But the class is not unanimously working on the frog. There are Rudy and Bonnie Mueller working two units back on the grasshopper! Although their specimen has started to decay, they are yet doggedly and faithfully trying to count how many teeth it has. Don't tell them, but a grasshopper has no teeth.

The girls, Barbara and Darlene, seem to know what the score is. Boy, wish I had their talent at flipping that frog! That instinct might be good for the future—you never know, you know!

Suddenly Ray Ihnen starts a little fun by setting off his water pistol (I mean, pipet), for Doc has left the room. The excitement ends as he reappears. It's funny how often Ihnen and Ed Fritchel are both out of their respective seats but they do get off a little easier than Sailer.

Yes, there are two future medical missionaries! Mr. Peter Hinrichs and the Rev. Carl Luyben both aim to enter this fine work in the future.

At approximately 9:31 — only minutes more minutes 'till convo! Future Missionary Hanselmann starts the procession to the sink. He is ready to leave at 9:35, but another lab. period is almost over. My, but it was fun—and it ended so soon!

OLD WARTBURG NOW HOUSING WAR WORKERS

Construction work has made the sturdy old walls of the physical plant of the former Wartburg college, Clinton, Iowa, hum with human activity.

The old Wartburg is a fond memory with fourteen grads of Waverly, for five count it as their alma mater and nine, who also teach in Waverly now, once guided students through their studies in Clinton.

Clinton college had moved from Waverly in 1894, when the buildings yet standing in that city were constructed. For forty-one years two Wartburg colleges were maintained by the Lutheran church, the Wartburg Normal college which was housed on our present campus until it was merged with Wartburg in Clinton, 1933, and the Wartburg college of Clinton. Five years after the formation of the American Lutheran church in 1930, both schools left Clinton for the more roomy plant in Waverly, where Wartburg college is now expanding.

The old campus in Clinton dominates the city, overlooking the Mississippi river. From its massive towers on the old Administration building one can see over the river into Illinois. The campus was distinguished by this building and the women's dormitory, as well as a few other minor buildings.

All four of these buildings are to be converted into a total of sixty-eight apartments for war workers as the American Lutheran Church adds its helping hand to the war effort once more. This project is to cost $151,351, and is to be financed by the Home Owners Loan Corporation with district offices in Omaha, Nebraska. Construction work is in the hands of T. B. Wilson company of Janesville, Wisconsin. The property, with all improvements, will revert to the American Lutheran Church in 1951, according to the contract.

University of California's naval ROTC was instituted in 1926.—(A. C. P.)

Since the last column of this kind was written, quite a number of things have happened. Senior Day has come and gone—the first Wartburg ball game of the season against Luther has swished by, the remaining baseball schedule is already set up—the light-clads were at Simpson yesterday and at Drake today running the 880 yard relays, and believe it or not the rain has gone—I, or rather we all so hope, anyway.

Quite a number of fellows signed up about two weeks ago for track work and baseball. About ten men reported for track work and about fifteen for hardball practice. Well, you remember how the weather was those past few weeks—not exactly rain—just a cold, heavy mist; anyhow the fellows weren't able to practice too much. The results from the track meet at Simpson haven't come through yet, but at the Luther game with Luther Wednesday the gang really came out and let the Norsemen know that they hadn't been sitting around, anyway. Shorty did some pretty slick pegging across the old middle of the pan and Ed Gabel's three bagger and the Loots to Ihnen to Koch triple play were a couple of Wartburg's outstanding thrillers. Following the saying, "Give credit where credit is due. "I would like to say Wartburg really looked sweet out there—hitting was good. Probably the only thing the Hertelmen were slack in was handling the ball, but you'll show Decorah who has the better team on the return engagement on May 4—won't you, gang?

It kind of looks as if tennis sets are out of the question right now. Only a few fellows turned out for practice and then it was in the gym; it's that damp weather again. Plans are being made now to have at least one meet with Iowa State sometime in the latter part of May—but this may all be changed before long.

Well, I've racked and combed through my gray matter to just about the limit—so it's 30 until the next issue.

(GOOD LUCK)

. . . or sealing friendships in New Zealand

Kia ora, says the New Zealander to wish you well. Have a "Coke" is the way the Yank says it and he's made a friend. It says Welcome neighbor from Auckland to Albuquerque. 'Round the globe, Coca-Cola stands for the pause that refreshes,—has become the high-sign between friendly minded people. So, of course, Coca-Cola belongs in your icebox at home.

It's natural for popular names to acquire friendly abbreviations. That's why you hear Coca-Cola called "Coke".
